Dear Tom,

Sorry I missed you today, but here as promised, are four artists from New Jersey whom I highly recommend for your consideration: James Andrew Brown is a mixed media and installation artist. Stefanie Nagorka, an interesting artist, uses minimal strategies to a more humanist effect. And finally, Victor Davson who has contributed to the New Jersey art scene in another context as co-founder and director of Aljira, has a parallel occupation as artist. His work uses the metaphor of limbo and the West African & Caribbean trickster character Anancy, to speak about the twisting and bending of trans-African cultural experience in the context of the modernist--or post-modernist present.

These artists have all had a small recognition and I think they are ready to be seen in a larger context such as your exhibit.

I will fax short text I'd previously written about each artist for other purposes.

If you need to contact me again you may do so with the number you called before 718-638-0461 or even better, by e-mail: hfa4@erols.com.

Take care and good luck with your show.

Sincerely, Carl

STEFANIE NAGORKA

NOURISH!

© Carl E. Hazlewood

A description of Stefanie Nagorka's new installation, Nourish! is stark in its details: one hundred shiny galvanized buckets placed directly on the gallery floor at ten inch intervals within a grid formation. Each bucket contains clear plastic bags of powdered milk sealed with red plastic tape.

Ms Nagorka continues to use the restrictive language of primary structures as a working method. But the severe formalism one expects from minimalist masters such as Carl Andre or Donald Judd is constantly undermined by her rejection of heroic geometry and materials. Instead, the substances or objects she uses are evocative in a visceral sense. Rather than simply reaching for an unattainable utopian purity of form and relationships, her art employs physical and social processes to become sites for organic change. Cool and reserved, her formal approach belies the activist nature of her engagement with the world.

For a recent installation project Ms Nagorka put on display hands cast in beeswax from one hundred people of all ages including some of whom were HIV-positive. Strong hands, smooth delicate child fingers, wrinkled or arthritic looking older ones were all transformed into poignant reminders of human frailty. In the end, one's first impression of pristine clarity turned out to be a formal seduction into a humanistic activity of uncanny associative power.

Nourish! continues in a similar vein. According to the artist, "The installation is about nourishment: the conspicuous lack of it..." Yet there is no didactic intention here, rather, questions are raised but solutions left open ended. Again, the essentially expressive/suggestive nature of Nagorka's stripped-down presentations encourages us to construct narratives that might connect with the polemical structure of her objects. There is the evident aesthetic pleasure of the grid, its formal order, the agreeable mathematical rhythm of its constituent parts. But, "...repetition of forms echoes the repetitive nature of daily living; domestic elements express the importance of the daily rituals of cleaning, cooking and caring." The artist's responsibility as care giver, her particularly female experience as a nurturing wife and mother provides another dimension, an interface into this new work. Milk is the primal food, associated with mother love and caring. The empty bucket promises the possibility of being filled. There is much trouble in our own backyard and abroad in countries like Bosnia, Rwanda or Haiti, especially for children. This installation prods us to think, however briefly, about the spiritual and physical needs of others. One might even provide a little 'milk of human kindness.'

Stefanie Nagorka lives in Montclair, New Jersey. She has shown in one person exhibitions at the Drawing Center and at the Information Gallery, both in New York City. Other exhibitions were at Richard Anderson Fine Arts, NY, the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, DC, and the San Diego Art Institute, San Diego, California. In New Jersey the Artist showed at the NJ State Museum, City Without Walls and Aljira. Ms Nagorka's work is represented in a number of private collections including that of Werner Kramarsky.

CHITLINS

AN EXHIBITION BY JAMES ANDREW BROWN

© Carl E. Hazlewood 1999

Chitlins is a Southern food in which the intestine of a pig or cow is the main ingredient used to create a savory dish. The visual dish served up by James Andrew Brown is, as usual, particularly savory. The attraction/repulsion one feels when dealing with the thought of eating an animal's intestine may be analogous in some way to the sly, repulsive charms of the artistic melange Brown puts before the unwary viewer.

Elliptical and vaguely humorous, Brown's work tends to be overwhelming and aggressive, never mind transgressive. A few years ago upon seeing his work in an Amsterdam exhibition called Other Bloods, I noted that James Andrew Brown investigates the totemic complex of desire and repulsion that exists within and without his own community in terms of various kinds of social, sexual, racial, and other relationships. This remains true of his current work. For years he has been creating objects, images and installations that have proved disturbing to the casual viewer. Brown isn't necessarily aiming for mere sensationalism; that is just a cheap thrill. What he does encourage, is a provocation of the spirit if such provocation would engender a set of questions concerning the basic nature and symbolic structure of what we have come to accept as art.

The parallel, or perhaps intertwined subject central to Brown's production—aside from art itself—concerns the conflicted relationship between contemporary men and women. This is an art of the innards, a sweet dish of Chitlins served cold; it brims with the evidence of 'hetro' sexual energy and desire.

The Museum of Modern Art Archives, NY	Collection:	Series.Folder:
	MoMA PS1	I.A.2691

The numerous 'in your face' depictions of sex organs and similar representations, accentuate effect, while adding to the strong erotic hum that is generated from much of this work.

However, the formal strategies used by Brown remain far from didactic concerning social or sexual relationships, or even artistic expression, as the artist resists manipulating us with any easy or obvious messages or emotions. Like the video in the installation on view, in which a woman appears to be pursued by a lover or an attacker, there is a reserve, or perhaps a confusion about whether this is all in play or deadly serious. The dolls and toys used throughout his installation indicate one answer, but the distortion they have undergone strips them of innocence and may clue us in to something much more subversive. But because all of this is modulated by art and artifice, we are left alone with our 'gut feelings'; raw emotional 'chitlin' responses that are ours and our alone.

Dear Michelle Lee White,

Thanks so much for your faxed list of this morning. Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev, a senior curator here working on the Greater New York show, was hoping you would be able to help us contact the following people:

Nicole Awai – (718) 599 – 5392
Xenobia Bailey – (212) 971 – 1032
Elsa Alba – (718) 937 – 8088
Julie Clark – (718) 420 – 9337 fax (917) 279 – 6008 CAVA in Fl.
Michael Richards ———— (917) 279 – 6008 CAVA in Fl.
George Smith – Deceased
Perona Morrison ———— in Jamaica V/I (876) 926 – 8841
Rudzani Nemasetoni – (718) 643 – 5699
Bob Rivera – (718) 389 – 2161 – drop off slides wed. '76, '83, '92
David Fludd ———— Massachusetts College of Art, Boston
Christopher Wynter – (212) 645 – 1794

If you do not have CV's available, their current telephone numbers would be really useful as well. Michael Richards is apparently at a residency program in Florida and we have been trying to track this address down. Would you--by any chance--happen to have this?

Again, thank you so much for your rapid assistance and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Larissa Harris

FAXED

December 16, 1999

To: Michelle Lee White
Studio Museum in Harlem (1 page, by fax to 212 666 5753)
From: Larissa Harris
P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center

Dear Michelle Lee White,

Thanks so much for your faxed list of this morning. Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev, a senior curator here working on the Greater New York show, was hoping you would be able to help us contact the following people:

Nicole Awai
Xenobia Bailey
Ella Alba
June Clark
Michael Richards
George Smith
Petrona Morrison
Rudzani Nemasetoni
Bob Rivera
David Fludd
Christopher Wynter

If you do not have CV's available, their current telephone numbers would be really useful as well. Michael Richards is apparently at a residency program in Florida and we have been trying to track this address down. Would you—by any chance--happen to have this?

Again, thank you so much for your rapid assistance, and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Larissa Harris
Programs Associate

Dear Carolyn, I started to respond to this mail but my computer crashed. Apologies if you got an extra partial note. Wednesday would be perfect. Is 5:30 or 6:00 alright? If not, I can make it earlier too. Once I know your timing I will contact Kevin and

Jennifer McCoy, who are media artists in the next WTC office space. We should then plan to meet in the lobby of World Trade Center 1. Make sure you bring picture id! You can also reach me at 212 337-0680 today. Thank you very much for your interest. I look forward to meeting you. Best wishes, Stephen Vitiello

Dear Kathy,

I would like to inform you that P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center is organizing an exhibition of works by artists from the New York Metropolitan area, which will open in February 2000.

I am enclosing a request for submission of slides by artists. I would appreciate if you could inform artists connected with your institution about this project.

We look forward to reviewing their documentation.

We would also appreciate if you could inform Moukhtar Kocache and Antonio Muntadas about the upcoming exhibition as well.

Thank you for your help and consideration.

It was nice to speak to you yesterday. I will be happy to meet Irene Tsatsos from LACE.

Please find enclosed an information letter for the upcoming project at PS 1 Greater New York . We are giving it out to artists. Please feel free to spread the news. We would also appreciate receiving some specific recommendations by you for the artists whom you feel might submit their slides to us for review.

Thank you very much for your attention and help.

Hello Larissa,
As we discussed, I feel that if the video and the jars of honey are presented in the cafe, then the honey must also be sold there. Presenting the video and the jars of honey in a site particular to the sale of food products, and then selling the food product elsewhere lends an air of staging or impurity that makes me uncomfortable. If the cafe will sell the honey, I'm very happy to see the piece presented there. I'd also be happy to sell the honey at the cafe and at the front desk, as both are locations of commerce. If the honey can only be sold at the front desk, then I feel that we must commit to that location for the whole piece, with the exception of one jar of honey in the cafe for visitors' tea.

If it becomes possible to install in the cafe I would like to avoid the use of a pedestal for the television. If P.S.1 does not have a TV cart or stand that makes aesthetic sense in the cafe, I will provide one.

Thank you very much for your understanding,

Hope

P.S.1

P.S.1 is one of the largest and oldest arts organizations in the United States solely devoted to contemporary art. Recognized as a defining force of the alternative space movement, P.S.1 stands out from major arts institutions in its cutting edge approach to exhibitions and direct involvement of artists within a scholarly framework. P.S.1 acts as an intermediary between the artist and its audience. Functioning as a living and active meeting place for the general public, P.S.1 is a catalyst for ideas, discourses and new trends in contemporary art. With its educational programs, P.S.1 assists the public in understanding art and provides the tools to appreciate contemporary art and its practices.

P.S.1 receives annual support from the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs towards operating costs. Programs of P.S.1 are supported by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs, The Office of the President of the Borough of Queens, The Council of New York City, the P.S.1 Board of Directors, the New York State Council of the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts. Additional funding is provided by foundations, corporate and individual contributions, and membership and admission donations.

Directions: P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center is located just across the Queensboro Bridge from midtown Manhattan, at the intersection of Jackson and 46th Avenues, in Long Island City. It is easily accessible by bus and subway. Traveling by subway, visitors should take either E or F to 23 Street-Ely Avenue, the 7 to 45 Road-Courthouse Square, or the G to Court Square or 21 Street-Van Alst. They may also take the Q67 bus to Jackson and 46th Avenues or the B61 to Jackson Avenue.

KUNST-WERKE BERLIN (KW)

KW was founded in winter 1990/91 by Klaus Biesenbach, Alexandra Binswanger, Phillip von Doering, Alfonso Rutigliano, and others. The former (in those days completely ruined) margarine factory at Auguststrasse 69 was used for exhibition and studio spaces from its first moments. KW's exhibition "37 rooms" in 1992 was a pioneer in founding the new art district around Auguststrasse in Berlin Mitte. Through the assistance of the German Lottery Foundation Berlin, the old building complex underwent renovations starting in early 1996. A new exhibition hall and "Café Bravo" by Dan Graham have been built, and KW has begun to receive international recognition as an ambitious institution for contemporary art, with a studio program that has promoted over seventy artists at home and abroad. KW was supported by P.S.1 through its consolidating years and has initiated co-operations with institutions worldwide. KW has realized over ninety exhibitions with artists such as Monica Bonvicini, Douglas Gordon, Dan Graham, Carsten Höller, Christine Borland, Bruce Nauman, Christine Hill and Katharina Sieverding among many others. KW is a location of the berlin biennale.

KW is supported by the Berlin Senatsverwaltung für Wissenschaft, Forschung und Kultur.

GREATER NEW YORK
AT P.S.1 CONTEMPORARY ART CENTER
An unprecedented joint exhibition enterprise with The Museum of Modern Art
Opening February 27, 2000
Public Reception 12-6pm

Long Island City, NY (February 2, 2000) — P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center announces Greater New York, an unprecedented joint enterprise with The Museum of Modern Art. Working cooperatively since September 1999, curators from P.S.1 and MoMA have selected an exhibition that will showcase more than 100 artists who have emerged as vital, creative voices in their field over the last five years.

The Greater New York exhibition embodies the diversity of ideas found in the metropolitan area. The work will span mediums from painting and photography to site-specific installations and video projections, presenting a range and balance between artists who have become prominent since 1995 and those artists who have yet to gain wide-spread public recognition.

"This exhibition, is not necessarily a comprehensive survey of the New York art scene, but an investigation or report of ideas recently generated by artists," said Alanna Heiss, Director of P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center. "Greater New York is a creative laboratory of massive proportions that combines the curatorial talents of two distinct institutions. And, the artists in the show reveal what it is to be a New Yorker at the beginning of a new era as they anticipate the future while they grant us an opportunity to examine their collective potential."

"Greater New York has focused the talents of a distinguished team of curators from our own backyard with the intent of taking a look at contemporary art production on the eve of the new millennium," according to MoMA Director, Glenn D. Lowry. "From Staten Island, to Williamsburg to Newark, New Jersey, the combined staff of MoMA and P.S.1 have scoured the New York metropolitan area in search of young artists who are breaking new ground."

To select the exhibition, more than 30 curatorial staff members representing both MoMA and P.S.1 reviewed the work of some 2000 artists in marathon slide viewing sessions. Teams of curators from P.S.1 and MoMA, both seasoned and younger curators, have visited over 250 studios in the New York area. Studio visits were conducted by Directors Glenn Lowry and Alanna Heiss, Brian O'Doherty, P.S.1 Associate Director and Robert Storr, MoMA Senior Curator of Painting and Sculpture, among others.

A group of six curators are overseeing the final organization and installation of the exhibition - from P.S.1: Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev (Senior Curator), Klaus Biesenbach (Senior Curator), and Russell Haswell (Curator); and from MoMA: Paulo Herkenhoff (Adjunct Curator, Painting and Sculpture), Laura Hoptman (Assistant Curator, Drawings), and Debby Wye (Chief Curator, Prints and Illustrated Books).

Surroundings

P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center maintains a full program of retrospectives, one-person exhibitions, thematic exhibitions and international group shows that have extended its reach from Japan to Russia. On this occasion, P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center pursues its on-going quest for uncharted territory in its immediate context: the artists of the city of New York. Greater New York will fill nearly all of P.S.1's spaces and galleries.

To document the exhibition, P.S.1 and MoMA have initiated the Greater New York writing project. Augmenting the exhibition, will be a collection of essays by new writers from New York whom P.S.1 and MoMA have invited to contribute critical essays for the exhibition. These essays will be featured on-line at www.ps1.org along with images of works in the exhibition. The project will serve as the official documentation of the Greater New York exhibition and will be available as a CD rom with accompanying booklet. Public dialogues between artists and writers will take place each Sunday in April.

Greater New York is made possible by Peter Norton, Norton Family Foundation.
Generous support provided by the Lily Auchincloss Foundation, Inc. Additional funding provided by the Board of Directors of P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center, Robert J. Denison, the Douglas S. Cramer Foundation, The Contemporary Arts Council and The Junior Associates of The Museum of Modern Art, and by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs.

P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center

Background: P.S.1 was founded in 1971 by Alanna Heiss as The Institute of Art and Urban Resources Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to the transformation of abandoned and underutilized buildings in New York City into exhibition, performance, and studio spaces for artists. The Center now operates two internationally acclaimed spaces for contemporary art: P.S.1 in Long Island City and The Clocktower Gallery in Tribeca, both of which contain museum-quality galleries and extensive studio facilities for the National and International Studio Program.

P.S.1 is one of the largest and oldest arts organization in the United States solely devoted to contemporary art. Recognized as a defining force of the alternative space movement, P.S.1 stands out from major arts institutions in its cutting edge approach to exhibitions and direct involvement of artists within a scholarly framework. P.S.1 acts as an intermediary between the artist and its audience. Functioning as a living and active meeting place for the general public, P.S.1 is a catalyst for ideas, discourses and new trends in contemporary art. With its educational programs, P.S.1 assists the public in understanding art and provides the tools to appreciate contemporary art and its practices.

Funding:P.S.1 receives annual support from the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs towards operating costs. Programs of P.S.1 are supported by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs, The Office of the President of the Borough of Queens, The Council of New York City, the P.S.1 Board of Directors, the New York State Council of the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts. GREATER NEW YORK
AT P.S.1 CONTEMPORARY ART CENTER
An unprecedented joint exhibition enterprise with The Museum of Modern Art
Opening February 27, 2000
Public Reception 12-6pm

Long Island City, NY (February 2, 2000) — P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center announces Greater New York, an unprecedented joint enterprise with The Museum of Modern Art. Working cooperatively since September 1999, curators from P.S.1 and MoMA have selected an exhibition that will showcase more than 100 artists who have emerged as vital, creative voices in their field over the last five years.

The Greater New York exhibition embodies the diversity of ideas found in the metropolitan area. The work will span mediums from painting and photography to site-specific installations and video projections, presenting a range and balance between artists who have become prominent since 1995 and those artists who have yet to gain wide-spread public recognition.

"This exhibition is not necessarily a comprehensive survey of the New York art scene, but an investigation or report of ideas recently generated by artists," said Alanna Heiss, Director of P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center. "Greater New York is a creative laboratory of massive proportions that combines the curatorial talents of two distinct institutions. And, the artists in the show reveal what it is to be a New Yorker at the beginning of a new era as they anticipate the future while they grant us an opportunity to examine their collective potential."

"Greater New York has focused the talents of a distinguished team of curators from our own backyard with the intent of taking a look at contemporary art production on the eve of the new millennium," according to MoMA Director, Glenn D. Lowry. "From Staten Island, to Williamsburg to Newark, New Jersey, the combined staff of MoMA and P.S.1 have scoured the New York metropolitan area in search of young artists who are breaking new ground."

To select the exhibition, more than 30 curatorial staff members representing both MoMA and P.S.1 reviewed the work of some 2000 artists in marathon slide viewing sessions. Teams of curators from P.S.1 and MoMA, both seasoned and younger curators, have visited over 250 studios in the New York area. Studio visits were conducted by Directors Glenn Lowry and Alanna Heiss, Brian O'Doherty, P.S.1 Associate Director and Robert Storr, MoMA Senior Curator of Painting and Sculpture, among others.

A group of six curators are overseeing the final organization and installation of the exhibition - from P.S.1: Carolyn Christov-Bakargiev (Senior Curator), Klaus Biesenbach (Senior Curator), and Russell Haswell (Curator); and from MoMA: Paulo Herkenhoff (Adjunct Curator, Painting and Sculpture), Laura Hoptman (Assistant Curator, Drawings), and Debby Wye (Chief Curator, Prints and Illustrated Books).

P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center maintains a full program of retrospectives, one-person exhibitions, thematic exhibitions and international group shows that have extended its reach from Japan to Russia. On this occasion, P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center pursues its on-going quest for uncharted territory in its immediate content: the artists of the city of New York. Greater New York will fill nearly all of P.S.1's spaces and galleries.

To document the exhibition, P.S.1 and MoMA have initiated the Greater New York writing project. Augmenting the exhibition, will be a collection of essays by new writers from New York whom P.S.1 and MoMA have invited to contribute critical essays for the exhibition. These essays will be featured on-line at www.ps1.org along with images of works in the exhibition. The project will serve as the official ~~documentation~~ of the Greater New York exhibition and will be available as a ~~CD rom~~ with accompanying booklet. Public dialogues between artists and writers will take place each Sunday in April.

Greater New York is made possible by Peter Norton, Norton Family Foundation.
Generous support provided by the Lily Auchincloss Foundation, Inc. Additional funding provided by the Board of Directors of P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center, Robert J. Denison, the Douglas S. Cramer Foundation, The Contemporary Arts Council and The Junior Associates of The Museum of Modern Art, and by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs.

P.S.1 Contemporary Art Center

Background: P.S.1 was founded in 1971 by Alanna Heiss as The Institute of Art and Urban Resources Inc., a non-profit organization dedicated to the transformation of abandoned and underutilized buildings in New York City into exhibition, performance, and studio spaces for artists. The Center now operates two internationally acclaimed spaces for contemporary art: P.S.1 in Long Island City and The Clocktower Gallery in Tribeca, both of which contain museum-quality galleries and extensive studio facilities for the National and International Studio Program.

P.S.1 is one of the largest and oldest arts organization in the United States solely devoted to contemporary art. Recognized as a defining force of the alternative space movement, P.S.1 stands out from major arts institutions in its cutting edge approach to exhibitions and direct involvement of artists within a scholarly framework. P.S.1 acts as an intermediary between the artist and its audience. Functioning as a living and active meeting place for the general public, P.S.1 is a catalyst for ideas, discourses and new trends in contemporary art. With its educational programs, P.S.1 assists the public in understanding art and provides the tools to appreciate contemporary art and its practices.

Funding:P.S.1 receives annual support from the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs towards operating costs. Programs of P.S.1 are supported by the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs, The Office of the President of the Borough of Queens, The Council of New York City, the P.S.1 Board of Directors, the New York State Council of the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts.
