HOUSE IN MUSEUM GARDEN VISITED BY 50,000

The modern house for a growing family which was designed by Marcel Breuer and built in the Museum Garden at 4 West 54th Street, New York, has now been seen by over 50,000 persons.

It has proved to be one of the town's major attractions both to New Yorkers and to out-of-town visitors. Since the opening on April 15th, the landscaping around the House has been completed to give the building itself a striking suburban setting in vivid contrast to the surrounding office and business structures in midtown Manhattan. The high daily attendance average to date is proof of the increasing popular interest in modern architecture and the widespread acceptance of some of its most revolutionary aspects.

The House is open on weekdays from 12 until 7 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Direct access is from West 54th Street. Built-in ceiling exhaust fans will help to keep the House cool during the summer months. Admission is thirty-five cents.
