Studios will be air-conditioned for the summer session of art classes for children and young people and for parents and children at the People's Art Center of the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street. Beginning June 1 classes for children and young people from three to 18 years old and for parents working along with children between the ages of three and eight will be offered.

Applicants may register now for one or two classes a week for the entire 9-week session, or for four weeks in June or five weeks in July.

Classes are organized by ages rather than on the basis of art aptitude or special talent and are under the guidance of teachers trained in creative art education.

The People's Art Center at 21 West 53 Street, adjoining the main building of the Museum of Modern Art, is under the direction of Victor D'Amico, Director of the Museum's Department of Education. Fees range from $7.50 to $67.75 including materials.
