

member: Pope.L, 1978–2001
Eating The Wall Street Journal (Flag Version) Performer bios

Marie Louise Guinier has performed at venues throughout New York City, including the Brooklyn Academy of Music's Harvey Theater, the Lincoln Center Out of Doors festival, La MaMa, the Nuyorican Poets Cafe, and INTAR Theatre, as well as at the Folger Theatre in Washington, D.C., and the Boston Center of the Arts. Guinier has been nominated for both IRNE (Independent Reviewers of New England) and NYIT (New York Innovative Theatre) awards. She can currently be seen in Strive, a feature film starring Danny Glover, and has also appeared in the television series High Maintenance (HBO) and What Would You Do? (ABC).

With over 20 years of acting experience both on stage and on set, Sean Mana's first significant venture into performance art is Pope.L's Eating the Wall Street Journal. His previous television credits include 30Rock, Law & Order: SVU, FOX's Jonny Zero, and he has performed at venues including the Samuel Beckett Theatre, Billie Holiday Theatre, and 59E59 Theaters.