"MODERN BIBLE ILLUSTRATION" TO BE EXHIBITED AT MUSEUM

Original prints in color and in black and white will offer a survey of visual renderings of events from the Old and New Testaments in an exhibition to be shown at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, from July 18 through August 19. Selected by Monroe Wheeler of the Museum staff from the Museum's print collection, these etchings, aquatints, lithographs and woodcuts will be available as a Circulating Exhibition after their Museum showing. Twenty-five prints by 20 artists are included, representing work from Germany, Belgium, Italy, the School of Paris and the United States.

The first prints, from woodblocks carved by anonymous monks in the 15th century, were popular images of saints and of episodes from the Bible. Today this same subject matter is a rich source for the modern artist, the interest is as compelling as it was for his predecessors. Among the artists represented, one only - Marc Chagall - has attempted a complete series of illustrations to the Bible. His Joseph the Shepherd is one of 105 etchings which as yet remain unpublished. The other artists have chosen merely isolated episodes from the gospel. The most frequent theme is the Crucifixion with five highly different renditions by Emile Bernard, André Racz, Georges Rouault, Jacques Villon and the young Italian Marcello Muccini.

A contrast to the deep religious inspiration of Rouault, represented by three examples, are Pascin's mundane Judgment of Solomon and Picasso's frankly witty David and Bathsheba, after Cranach.

The selection begins at the close of the 19th century with two illustrations by Redon for the Apocalypse of St. John, Maurice Denis' moving Christ at Emmaus and Ensor's Multiplication of the Fishes.

Work of the expressionists includes Beckmann, Kokoschka, Lehmbruck, and bold woodcuts by Barlach, Rohlfis and Schmidt-Rottluff; the last three show an affinity to early German religious woodcuts that particularly inspired so many of the German expressionists.

The most recent prints are by the two Americans André Racz and Bernard Reder. Racz's "There was darkness over the whole earth" is the last plate in a series of 15 engravings on the stations of the Cross. Reder's Meal inside the Ark is one of 45 woodcuts that are free personal interpretations of the story of the Flood.
