ETCHINGS BY MATISSE and PRINTS FROM EUROPE AND JAPAN

ON VIEW AT MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

Two exhibitions, ETCHINGS BY MATISSE and PRINTS FROM EUROPE AND JAPAN, will be on view at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, for four weeks only, from May 4 through May 30. Featuring recent additions to the Museum's collection, not previously shown at the Museum, both exhibitions were selected and installed by William S. Lieberman, Curator of Prints. After the New York showing, the thirty etchings by Matisse will tour several cities in the United States. The etchings also appear this month in a book of facsimile reproductions with an introduction by Mr. Lieberman.

ETCHINGS BY MATISSE consists of two constellations of prints, prefaced by a few early drypoints of 1903. Twice, in 1914 and again in 1929, Matisse took up etching with enthusiasm, as if he deliberately sought temporary refreshment from easel painting in the chemistry of another medium. The etchings of 1914 consist mostly of quick and informal portraits of his family and friends -- his wife and children, the wives of the painters Derain, Galanis and Juan Gris, the American painter Walter Pach, the model Loulou. Matisse often etched several portraits of the same sitter.

The second series of etchings (1929) are studies of professional models -- nudes, odalisques, girls gazing at goldfish. Although some of the variations repeat or anticipate motifs in his painting, most often they remain distinct. The most successful of the etchings of 1929 offer bold reductions of a pose or movement into an abbreviated essential of lines.

PRINTS FROM EUROPE AND JAPAN, the second exhibition, falls into several categories. The first group consists of nine large Japanese woodcuts recently acquired by the Museum. These woodcuts blend traditional and modern styles, sometimes with mystery, often with humor. Of the six artists represented, Kiyoshi Saito is the best known in the United States. One of the woodcuts, The Arrival of the South Savages by Sumio Kawakami, depicts the coming to Japan of the Portugese in the 16th century. Umetaro Azechi, Jomo-o Inagaki, Hide Kawanishi, Fumio Kitaoka are also included.

A gallery in the exhibition is devoted to the expressionist movement in Germany, particularly those artists who banded together around 1905 to form the group known as the Brücke (Bridge). In retrospect, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner emerges as the dominant personality of the Brücke. He is represented by two lithographs and four woodcuts. All the German expressionists regarded print-making as important as painting. The woodcuts of Kirchner, Kollwitz, Heckel, Nolde, Pechstein, Rohlf's (born in 1849) and Schmidt-Rottluff naturally combine strength and decoration. To these are added several lithographs by Dix, Hofer, Kokoschka, Klee and Otto Mueller. The selection of expressionist prints begins in 1904 and ends in 1925. A large color woodcut of 1953, four feet high, by Helmut Grieshaber, is included as an example of a younger artist continuing the expressionist tradition in Germany today. Grieshaber lives and works on the isolated mountain Achalm in the province of Wurtemberg.

Ten prints by two late 19th century precursors of surrealism, James Ensor and Odilon Redon, are followed by a small selection of contemporary European lithographs in color. The work of artists from several countries is shown. Kenneth Armitage and Robert Colquhoun are British; Elenbaas is Dutch; Fabbri and Music are Italian; the Frenchman, Dubuffet, the Italian, Campigli, and the Chinese Zao Wou-ki work in Paris. With the exception of Campigli, all the artists have established their reputations as painters and sculptors since the war. Picasso, more than any other single artist, stimulated the renaissance of lithography in Europe today. He is represented in the exhibition by three large lithographs, done in a single day. They offer three variations of a portrait of Honoré Balzac, whose work Picasso first illustrated in 1927. Picasso's Balzac was obviously inspired by Rodin's great bronze sculpture, a recent gift, on view in the Museum Garden.

A polyptych in six panels, The Herring Catch, by the Norwegian Rolf Nesch, has been recently given to the Museum by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jaretzki, Jr. Daring in its scale and boldness, the series of color engravings reveal Nesch as one of the contemporary innovators in intaglio in Europe.

PRINTS FROM EUROPE AND JAPAN consist of fifty-five recent additions to the Museum Collections. The prints have been acquired through purchase funds and gifts. Donors include Mr. Larry L. Aldrich; Mr. Samuel A. Berger; Mrs. W. Murray Crane; Mr. Peter H. Deitsch; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jaretzki, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. E. Powis Jones; Mr. Victor S. Riesenfeld; Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, 3rd; Mrs. Donald B. Straus; Mr. Edward M. M. Warburg.

Note: A checklist of prints in both exhibitions will be available at the press preview. Photographs are also available on request from Elizabeth Shaw, Publicity Director, Museum of Modern Art.
