MUSEUM OF MODERN ART TO HAVE LUNCH AND TEA SERVICE IN SCULPTURE GARDEN

During the spring and summer months the Museum of Modern Art will serve luncheon and tea in its sculpture garden. In a small grove of newly-planted linden trees visitors may sit in red, blue and pale yellow chairs at pale yellow tables where, in addition to luncheon and tea, they may have soft drinks, American and Mexican beer, and red and white wines from North and South America.

The luncheon and tea service will be inaugurated Thursday, May 28. Luncheon hours will be from 12 Noon to 2:30 P.M. except Sundays, and tea from 4 to 6 P.M. everyday. Soft drinks and beer and North and South American wines will be served between 12 Noon and 6 P.M. In case of rain luncheon and tea will be served in the penthouse.

The luncheon menu will include each day a cold soup, a salad or an open sandwich, dessert, and coffee or tea, hot or iced. The price will be one dollar and, although there will be few choices on each day's menu, the guest will be permitted to have as much of any item as he wishes. Sandwiches and cake will be served with tea for thirty-five cents.

Sheila Hibben, well known authority on food and author of "A Kitchen Manual," has arranged the menus with Robert P. Day, head of Dean's, who will have charge of the luncheon and tea service. Many of the dishes served are from Mrs. Hibben's own recipes.

The luncheon and tea in the garden is a service to the public visiting the Museum. There will be an entrance on 54th Street which will lead directly to the garden, but the regular Museum admission fee of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children will be charged, for which the guest will have access to all of the Museum galleries and to its motion picture program, shown daily including Sundays.
