The Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, announces the gift of thirty-six pieces of modern sculpture from Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. All but two of them are from her private collection which she has assembled over the past twenty years. Several of the greatest sculptors of the twentieth century are well represented: Maillol by four bronzes; Lehmbruck by three pieces including the colossal Standing Youth, one of his masterpieces; Despiau by five of his sensitive portraits and seated figure; Lachaise by seven pieces in bronze, stone and plaster; Kolbe by a portrait and two figures. Sculpture by famous painters include a bronze head by Baumer; Matisse's striking Standing Woman; and—possibly the finest of Modigliani's stone heads given by Mrs. Rockefeller in memory of Mrs. Cornelius J. Sullivan, one of the founders of the Museum.

Almost the entire gift will be placed on exhibition in the Museum's sculpture galleries on Wednesday, March 6.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. is at present a Trustee of the Museum of Modern Art and has served in the capacity of Vice-President and Treasurer. Her son, Nelson A. Rockefeller, was made President of the Museum last May. Mrs. Rockefeller was one of the founders of the Museum in 1929 and in May 1935 gave the Museum her collection of modern paintings, drawings and watercolors, which consisted of 181 objects, the work of 71 American and foreign artists, the Americans greatly predominating in numbers and in works included in the group.
