

YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015
HOST YOUR OWN EVENT

MOMA

PopRally presents YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015, a global gathering at sunrise on June 21, 2015, celebrating the MoMA exhibition Yoko Ono: One Woman Show, 1960–1971 and the 50th anniversary of Yoko Ono's New York performance of Morning Piece (1964) to George Maciunas.

Morning Piece was first performed in Tokyo in 1964 and again on the roof of Ono's apartment building at 87 Christopher Street in September 1965. At these events, attendees gathered at sunrise, and Ono sold artworks with typewritten pieces of paper attached to glass and other materials. Each specified a date and a particular period of morning (e.g., "February 3, 1987 after sunrise," "January 1, 1972 all morning").

Referencing the original work, YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015 is a sunrise gathering activated by events across the globe, allowing the celebration to continue for 24 hours as the sun rises in different time zones.

Individuals are encouraged to host their own events according to the following instructions:

*On the solstice at sunrise celebrate mornings of past, future, and now.
Listen to the world.
Touch each other
when the sun comes up.*

y.o. spring 2015

Share your experiences on social media via the hashtag #YokoOnoPeace, and posts will be aggregated online on the official YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015 Tagboard.

YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015
ARTMAKING TEMPLATE - FRONT

*Print pp. 2-3 double-sided,
print a different future or past
morning on the front, illustrate*

YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015
ARTMAKING TEMPLATE - BACK

*Print pp. 2-3 double-sided,
print a different future or past
morning on the front, illustrate*

MOMA

YOKO ONO MORNING PEACE 2015
in conjunction with Yoko Ono: One Woman Show, 1960-1971
June 21, 2015
-
The Museum of Modern Art
#YokoOnoPeace

