North of Boise - December, 1992

Last month our remodeling here in McCall was finally completed , and while it took considerably longer than we had anticipated, the results, which include an insulated storage building with floor to ceiling racks for Lou's paintings, are highly satisfactory. Now we are not waiting for (or cleaning up after) assorted carpenters, electricians and/or plumbers, we are trying to establish some sort of routine. Lou is painting every day, swims three times a week at the Club and is looking forward to hitting the trail on snowshoes with her camera , B reads a lot, watches football on TV and plays bridge whenever possible. She is looking for a group for regular weekly games and misses the Las Vegas bridge club.

Although B's leg is still not good, she has not needed to be hospitalized since March '91: we have been able to take several short trips in the motorhome including two to Washington ...revisiting Grays Harbor, seeing the new art museum in Seattle, and exploring the Hoods Canal area.... several along the Columbia Gorge to Portland, a return to Las Vegas... to see our wonderful holistic Vet. and visit with good friends, and finally a trip to Missula Mt. to get the most beautiful Siamese kitten. We call him Mr. Noh - having had to tell him "no" so often that he started to answer to that word.

Lou purchased a Blazer 4X4 in the Spring so she and Spud could explore the back country hiking, photographing, sketching and such, but it was not to be. Spud became ill and finally had to be put down early in July. He was the best of friends, a wonderful dog, and he will be missed.

We said no more dogs, but in November we acquired a small white and tan cocker from the Humane Society in Boise. She was a "rescue dog" so she is still a bit shy; however, she is pretty and very sweet and touched noses with the cats as soon as she came in the door.

For '93 we have planned a return to our favorite RV park near Portland, to attend Jane's production of Nunsense in Aberdeen, Wa. in May, and perhaps to take the RV to San Francisco in the early Spring (that is if Lou can get up courage to drive all 28 feet of it thru San Francisco traffic to reach the RV park there).

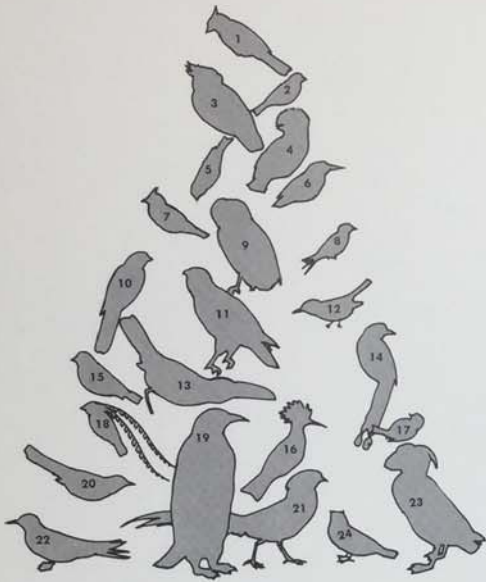

Our thoughts often turn to the East Coast. We miss it and family and friends there. As soon as B's leg and health permit, we will head East. Meanwhile, we're wishing all our friends everywhere the best of holidays and a really fine '93.

Affectionately,

Lou + B

Dear Grace:

Claudia Andujar has just sent us, by packet, this Christmas drawing for you. It was made by one of Claudia's Yanomami Indian friends -- in this case, an artist named Hiko, whom Claudia believes to be 70 years old. I think the drawing is an Indian version of the madonna and child, but I expect that's a Yankee interpretation.

In any case, Claudia is well, and hoping to get permission to return to the Amazon in January. She sends you love.

Me too. Thank you so much for your gracious card. Have a very happy Mexican holiday! and if you're on your way - OR did you go before Christmas. Hope to see you soon!

All the best in '78!

Dear Grace,

After a long session in the hospital ( by-pass surgery, prostate etc)
I'm happy to report that I've been back to the Lower West Side, completing a third "revisit" of the same individuals who I photographed 20 years ago.
This is proving to be my most important documentary series.

Here' some good news. WW Norton and Co. will be publishing my Lower West Side - Revisited series together with essays by Prof. Stephen Jay Gould and Prof. Robert Coles, both of Harvard. There will also be an essay by Jo Ann Wypejewsky. Jo Ann, a native of Buffalo will be interviewing some of the people who I photographed in the Lower West Side.

Anne and I hope you are well .

We think of you often.

Sincerely

Milton Rogovin
