Museum of Modern Art
II W 53rd Street
New York City, N.Y.

Gentlemen,

My husband and I own two paintings presumably by Amedeo Modigliani. About three months ago we bought one of them and we adquired the second one in the last few days.

I am enclosing the pictures of both of them and their measurements (16 by 23 inches and 19 1/8 by 24 1/8 inches) written on the back of each photograph.

We desire to authenticate the paintings and this is my purpose in writing to you. In case that the authentication of paintings were not in your line we would be extremely grateful if you could provide us with the name or names of reliable experts that deal with this delicate kind of work.

Besides our personal interest in the matter I think it would be a very valuable achievement the finding and recording of two unknown up to day paintings by Modigliani.

To provide you with more detailed information I am making a brief history of

The Museum of Modern Art Archives, NY	Collection:	Series.Folder:
	WSL	V.16.c.iv

what I know about these two oil canvases.

They were brought to Perú by a german dealer around 1923. The person who bought both of them adquired them because he liked them but did not know who Modigliani was and paid an small sum for them. This person is dead now and his family has inherited what little he left. I do not think that they realize how famous are Modigliani's paintings. And very few people here in Perú have any appreciation for modern art. Besides the paintings have not even been in Lima but in Cajamarca one of our Northern highland States.

For more than it be appreciated in the photographs they seem to be authentical Modigliani. The coloring and the workmanship are typically Modigliani. The girl with a book is dressed in navy blue, cuffs and collar white and the background is grayish green (a similar background of plate N°6 "Woman in a garden",1918. "MODIGLIANI. Published by Albert Skira). The other portrait of a girl with a shawl has more or less the same color background, the blouse is white, the skirt navy blue and the shawl red color; both girls have blue eyes and brown hair.

But we will not be sure that the paintings are real Modigliani and not just clever phonies or copies until they are examined by an expert and thoroghly aunthenticated.

We understand that such an authentication can not be done only through a photograph. This is the reason why I am bothering your attention and asking your advise as to what can be done because you are the highest authority in modern art in the United States.

My husband and I are willing to send the paintings to the United States in care of the Museum of Modern Art o whoever you would recommend. And we would appreciate very much your advises as how to send them safely and properly insured and properly packed. I do not know what it would be safer if to send them both in a wooden crate (they are not large) just as they are or to have them dismounted from their stretchers and packed rolled up with the painting facing the outside. Also I am interested to know how the declaration to go through Customs should be made as they will return to this Country after being examined.

We would be very grateful to you for any help or information. We also understand that the air shipping, return, appraising and any other expenses involved will be paid by us with a check on a New York Bank.

If you desire references about my husband Mr. Ramon Aspillaga, or his firm "Aspillaga Anderson Hermanos", Lima, Perú, they can be offer to you by Mr. Otto Kreuzer Vice-President of The Chase National Bank, Pine Street-corner of Nassau, New York City, N.Y.

Thanking you in advance for any information you would supply us

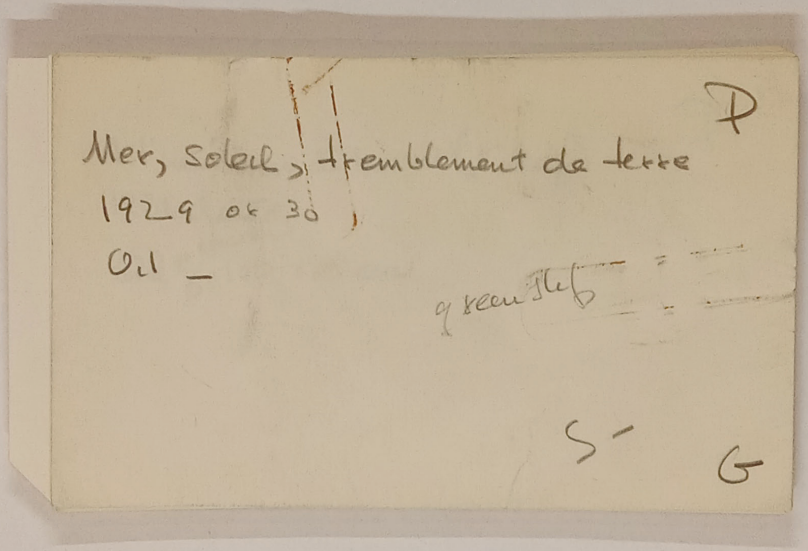

I am Sincerly yours

Sara María de Aspillaga

Dear Bill:

Here are the photostats of the pictures on which we still need information.

You say that the Museum nude should be called "The Great Nude." Our permission from Dorothy Miller identifies it as "Reclining Nude." Which title should we use?

The Brillouin "Hebuterne" belongs to Brody in California. They've owned it since 1951.

The Seligmann drawing of "Cingria" is now in the Brooklyn Museum.

Would you like an acknowledgment in the book?

We really are in a first-class desperate hurry now to finish the book; please, Bill, try to do what you can as soon as you can.
