NEW ART MATERIALS FOR CHILDREN PUT ON SALE BY MUSEUM

New kinds of children's art materials and equipment, designed under the supervision of the Museum of Modern Art's Educational Program, are now available on order through the Museum, 11 West 53 Street. Among the 10 items is THE TONI HUGHES PLASTIC WORK BOX with materials and instructions for making plastic mobiles, a COLLAGE AND CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS BOX, and 5 different kinds of easels, including one folding set that can be stored in a closet. Four JIG-SAW PUZZLES made from reproductions of paintings by well-known modern artists are also available.

Three different kinds of easels - hanging, low table model and adjustable table model - are available either knocked down, in pre-cut pieces which can be assembled easily at home, or, at a slightly higher price, completely finished. Home carpenters who wish to do their own construction can buy working drawings.

THE TONI HUGHES PLASTIC WORK BOX contains sheets of colored plastic, tubing, string, a punch and a pair of scissors. With these materials children can make the hanging mobiles which were featured recently in the Children's Holiday Carnival at the Museum.

THE COLLAGE AND CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS BOX includes a variety of materials such as string, colored papers, bits of fur, felt, and wire mesh with which children can make "cut-and-paste" designs or three-dimensional constructions.

The paintings for the JIG-SAW PUZZLES include: The Sleeping Gypsy by Rousseau; Composition in White, Black and Red by Mondrian; Pierrot and Harlequin by Picasso, and Mountain, Table, Anchors, Navel by Arp.

A price list is enclosed. Most of the items may be seen in the Young People's Gallery of the Museum from April 11 through April 30. Photographs are available on request.
