PADRAIC AND MARY COLUM TO SPEAK ON IRISH POETRY AT MUSEUM

Padraic and Mary Colum will discuss Irish Poetry on Wednesday evening, January 3, at 9 p.m. in the third of Five Poetry Evenings, at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street.

Mr. Colum, poet, and Mrs. Colum, essayist, are now living in this country and teaching at Columbia University. They are well qualified to speak on the subject of Irish poetry for, besides their own writing activities for which they are well known, they were friends of most of the important Irish poets of the early part of the century, including William Yeats, James Joyce, A.E., James Stephens and Sean O'Casey.

On Monday, January 15, Wallace Stevens will speak on the relations between poetry and painting, and on Wednesday, January 31, E.E. Cummings will discuss and read his recent poems.

Tickets are available at the Museum at $2.40.
