RESULTS OF POLL OF GOOD DESIGN 1951

Number one preference of consumers who have visited the Museum of Modern Art-Merchandise Mart Good Design 1951 show at The Mart is Chambers' new pale grey range with chrome broiler and locking gas handles, which ranked eighth with buyers. First choice among buyers was the walnut desk designed by George Nelson from the Herman Miller executive office group. A poll of several thousand consumers and store buyers, just completed, nevertheless indicates that this year there are more selections in common - though in a different order of choice - than in the polls during 1950 when there was considerable disparity in choice of the two groups.

Following is the listing of the first ten choices of each group:

Consumers	Buyers
1. Chambers range	George Nelson executive desk
2. Edward Wormley natural cherry desk for Dunbar	Lounge chair from Ron Fidler Associates; black steel frame, leather seat and back
