A 1951 white Jaguar, model XK120, will go on view in the garden of the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, on Thursday, September 6, as the second "Car of the Week" selected on the basis of design from the New York market to supplement the current exhibition of AUTOMOBILES.

The Jaguar, which is a two-seater convertible, is the fastest stock passenger car available, designed to have the feel of a racing car. Its sleek simplicity makes it one of the most popular sports cars sold today, according to Max Hoffman of the Hoffman Motor Company which is lending the car to the Museum.

The leather upholstery is red and tan, and the car sells for $3,995 delivered in New York. It has 160 horsepower engine and is capable of 102 miles an hour.
