Mr. Kahnweiler, who was Gris' close friend and champion as well as dealer, has come to New York from Paris for the exhibition.

Gris, born José Victoriano Gonzalez, left his native Madrid in 1906 and went to Paris where he found a studio in the famous Le Bateau Lavoir. He quickly became a part of the Paris High Bohemia of the day and remained in France until his death at the age of 40 in 1927. With Braque, Picasso and Léger, he is now generally considered one of the greatest cubist artists of our time.
