SUMMER CLASSES AT MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

As the People's Art Center of the Museum of Modern Art is now completely air conditioned, more workshop courses are being offered to summer students this year, Victor D'Amico, Director of the Center, has announced. A new workshop in Ceramic sculpture is one of the more than 50 classes available to adult amateurs, children and young people from 3 to 18, and parents and children working together. Registration is now open for the 2-month summer period beginning June 1. Students at the Center, 21 West 53 Street, may take a full course of 9 sessions, or a half course consisting of 4 sessions in June and 5 sessions in July. One Hundred and Fifty Years of Modern Art, an adult course tracing the development from neo-classicism to contemporary abstraction, is available for the full two-month term only.

Adult classes, primarily for those interested in art for personal satisfaction as a leisure-time activity, are organized on varying levels of aptitude and background. A special Orientation class, meeting Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30, is available to adults unfamiliar with any creative medium. The beginner will become acquainted with the various aspects of art and expression as a foundation for further study in a special field. Other adult classes include Beginning Drawing, Outdoor Sketching and Painting, Experimental Drawing and Painting, Life Class and Fundamentals of Design. There is also a lecture course by A.L. Chanin, Visits to Masterpieces in the Collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art.

Children's classes are organized by age group. Progress and growth are based on natural development under the guidance of trained teachers. Classes for children and young people and for parents and children working together cover a variety of media and materials, such as painting, clay work, collage and three-dimensional construction.
