CLASSES AT MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

Openings for adult amateurs are still available in three fall term evening classes at the People's Art Center of the Museum of Modern Art, 21 West 53 Street, according to Victor D'Amico, Director of the Center.

JEWELRY MAKING, beginning September 23 and meeting Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., will offer basic instruction in making such objects as sheet and wire brooches, rings, earrings, bracelets, tie clips and pendants. Students will be helped to create their own designs.

A Monday evening course for beginners, EXPLORING THREE-DIMENSIONAL EXPRESSION IN A VARIETY OF MEDIA, will also be held Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Scrapmetal, wood, wire, strings, plastics and other materials will be used to explore the possibilities of three dimensions in a structural sense.

DESIGN IN EVERYDAY LIVING, meeting Friday evenings, is planned to develop imagination and judgment in the creation, selection and organization of everyday objects. Designing and choosing ceramics, fabrics and furniture will be considered, as well as the integration of these objects in the home. The course will consider texture, form, color and space as basic to architecture and interiors.

Registration may be made by calling the People's Art Center at CI 5-8911.
