A special student rate of $1.50 is being offered for the lecture Monet and Conformity to Nature to be given by William C. Seitz at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, New York on Thursday, April 7, at 8:45 p.m. Mr. Seitz assembled and installed the Museum's current exhibition "Claude Monet: Seasons and Moments" which has drawn record crowds since it opened on March 9. Regular admission to the lecture is $2.00.

Tickets now on sale at the Museum, include admission to the galleries which will be open until 10 p.m. enabling visitors to see the originals of many of the works to be discussed in the lecture.

Mr. Seitz, a professor of art at Princeton University, has just been appointed Associate Curator of the Department of Painting and Sculpture Exhibitions at the Museum of Modern Art. He will join the staff on September 1.

In addition to the catalog for the Museum's exhibition which includes an essay on Monet as a painter of nature, Mr. Seitz is the author of Claude Monet's View of Nature published by the Minneapolis Institute of Arts and Claude Monet to be published in the spring by Harry Abrams, Inc.
