Registration for the summer session of art classes at the People's Art Center, 21 West 53 Street, is now open. Classes for children, young people and parents and for adult amateurs are offered in air-conditioned studios from June 3 through July 25 under the sponsorship of the Institute of Modern Art, an affiliate of the Museum of Modern Art.

Morning or afternoon classes for parents and children, three to six years old, are offered as well as classes for children and young people grouped according to age level from 3 to 18.

Adult classes are graded so that a student can choose one that suits his experience but teachers work with students individually so that varying interests and backgrounds are taken into account. These classes include Orientation, Beginning Drawing, Outdoor Sketching and Painting, Fundamentals of Design, Ceramic Sculpture and Modern Approach to Tapestry Weaving.

In addition, two courses of lectures are offered for June: "Aspects of Modern Art", a series of informal talks on ideas, problems and ways of looking at modern art; and "Modern Art Since 1900," a series illustrated with slides tracing the development of art from Fauvism to the present.

The school is under the direction of Victor D'Amico, Director of the Department of Education at the Museum of Modern Art. Fees/and additional information can be obtained from the People's Art Center, 21 West 53 Street, CI 5-8900.
