Registration for Fall art classes for children from 3 to 6 years old is now underway at The Art Center of The Museum of Modern Art, 4 West 54th Street. The 15-week session begins on September 25, with daytime classes meeting once a week, Monday through Saturday.

Children are grouped in classes according to age--3 to 4 year olds, 4 to 5 year olds, and 5 to 6 year olds. Classes, limited in size to 14 each, are designed to encourage the student's individual artistic development. The fee, including tuition and all materials, is $50 per term.

The Art Center also offers special classes for parents and children to work together exploring creative media. Each class has an enrollment of seven parents and seven children, aged 3 to 5. The fee, including tuition and all materials, is $80 for parent and child.

The Art Center, located on the entire lower level of the Museum's Garden wing, is equipped with studios, sculpture, ceramic and metal workshops, a research center, and an exhibition hall for showing work from the Museum's classes and from other schools in the United States and abroad.

The Art Center, directed by Victor D'Amico, is a non-profit institution established to extend the activities of The Museum of Modern Art's Education Department, and to develop new methods for creative art education in the United States and abroad. It is sponsored by the affiliated Institute of Modern Art.

For information about classes and reservations, call 245-3200 or inquire at The Art Center office at 4 West 54th Street. Catalogues are available on request.
