FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

A series of nine lectures on AMERICAN ART SINCE WORLD WAR II will be presented at The Museum of Modern Art on Wednesday evenings beginning February 14, 1968. Subscription tickets will be made available first to students at the special rate of $20.00 for the series.

Art historians and critics who have specially interested themselves in this period will discuss painting, sculpture and intermedia from different and frequently contradictory points of view. William S. Rubin, Curator of Painting and Sculpture at the Museum, organized the program and will introduce the speakers and moderate the discussion period following each lecture.

The series will open with a symposium on the possibilities and responsibilities of art criticism as it has functioned in regard to art since World War II. The discussions will be:
