DECEMBER/JANUARY OPENINGS

Nov. 19 - ARCHITECTURAL MODELS, DRAWINGS AND OBJECTS FROM THE COLLECTION. This exhibition of infrequently shown material from the Architecture and Design Collection includes many objects of historic interest, among them the plaster cast of a finial from Antoni Gaudi's Church of the Sagrada Familia in Barcelona; a model of a window from the same church; a section of the balustrade from one of Hector Guimard's Paris Metro Station entrances; a mass-produced wrought iron balcony also by Guimard; a columnar structure demonstrating the principle of tensegrity by Kenneth Snelson; an assortment of architectural models and drawings, including work by Le Corbusier, Finsterlin, Paul Nelson, Buckminster Fuller, and Louis Kahn; and drawings by Ludwig Mies van der Rohe from the Museum's Mies Archive. Selected and installed by Arthur Drexler, Director, Architecture and Design. Goodwin Galleries, 2nd floor.

Jan. 18 - PROJECTS: BARRY FLANAGAN. Barry Flanagan, the young British sculptor, has worked since the mid-1950s with such non-traditional materials as cloth, rope, and sand, creating stuffed containers to be erected, stacked, or heaped; floor sculptures and most recently hanging wall pieces. This exhibition is sponsored by The British Council and the National Endowment for the Arts. Directed by Nancy Karumba, Curatorial Assistant, Painting and Sculpture. 1st floor.

Dec. 28 - MARCEL DUCHAMP. A major retrospective of more than 200 works, including many unfamiliar works from private collections. Oils, drawings, objects, readymades, lithographs, books, replicas, and miscellaneous items including posters and films. Marcel Duchamp's long and varied career, which lasted more than fifty years, has changed the history of modern art. His influence on the twentieth century is rivaled only by that of Matisse and Picasso. Duchamp's work presents many paradoxes and ironies and there remain many enigmas. His early career begins with the paintings done in the "Fauve" style, moves to those reflecting Cubism, and culminates in masterpieces such as the Nude Descending a (over) Staircase and Le Passage de la Vierge à la Marie. His "playful physic; resulted in several benchmarks, including 3 Stoppages Etalon and Network of Stoppages (both in the Museum's collection). The very important inno vations of "the machine style" from 1913 to 1918 led to the Large Glass undoubtedly one of the great works of art of all times. Duchamp's "Readymades," embodying his "anti-art" ideas and Dada humor, undermined traditional art attitudes. While to the public at large his more recen output may have seemed negligible, Duchamp worked on a great many etch; drawings, and book designs, as well as a number of lesser-known objects which will be included in the exhibition. Upon his death it was reveal, that he had spent the last twenty years working on an important master­piece, Etant Donnés, now installed in the Philadelphia Museum of Art. This work, as a culmination of his prolific activity, now allows us to look at the total oeuvre in a very new way. The exhibition is joint the Museum has brought together all its promised and remainder-interest gifts and is showing them in the context of the works already at the Museum. The finest and most complete collection of Miro's work in public or private hands, the Museum's collection spans nearly every facet of Miro's career, from 1921 to 1972. The exhibition consists of more than 60 paintings, sculptures, collages, and drawings including several recent gifts from the artist himself, among them a series of studies never publicly exhibited or published for the Museum's paintings, Dutch Interior I of 1928 and Portrait of Mistress Mills in 1750 of 1929. A number of unrivaled masterpieces, such as The Birth of the World, acquired last year, are included as well. The works cover a span from Miro's realist painting of 1921 to the "tapestry" Sobreteixim 5, which brings the Museum's representation up to late 1972. In 1930, a few months after it was founded, the Museum first showed Miro's work, and in 1935 began to acquire his work. During the past 15 years the Collection has more than doubled. The publication, Miro in the Collection of The Museum of Modern Art, by William Rubin, illustrates and analyzes each work in the exhibition, which is directed by Mr. Rubin, Chief Curator, Painting and Sculpture Collection. 1st floor. (opened Oct. 10)

PAINTERS FOR THE THEATRE: AN INVITATION TO THE THEATRE ARTS COLLECTION. The Theatre Arts Collection of the Museum is an aspect of the collection little known to the general public. Such a collection is particularly relevant to a museum concerned with the arts of our time, when so many painters have contributed their talents to theatrical collaborations. The selection of designs for plays, operas, ballets, films, circuses, happenings, as well as for unrealized projects, suggests the variety of the Museum's holdings. Directed by William S. Lieberman, Curator, Drawings. 1st floor. (opened Nov. 19)

PUBLISHED IN GERMANY, 1923. A selection from the Museum's collection of prints published fifty years ago. In the fall of 1923 Adolf Hitler participated in the Munich Putsch, was imprisoned and began to write Mein Kampf. The previous summer the Bauhaus in Weimer had its first exhibition and during the year the Kestner Gesellschaft and Kurt Schwitters in Hanover published their first prints (Arp, Lissitzky, Moholy-Nagy, Schwitters) while Paul Cassirer in Berlin issued Marc Chagall's Mein Leben. At the same time the prints by Beckmann, Dix, and Kokoschka focused on the painful situation in which mankind found itself during the social and economic upheaval of post-war Germany. Directed by Riva Castleman, Curator, Prints and Illustrated Books, with the assistance of Howardena Pindell, Assistant Curator. Sachs Galleries, 3rd floor. (opened October 12)

The Museum of Modern Art gratefully acknowledges the support of its exhibition program by the New York State Council on the Arts.
THE PAINTING AND SCULPTURE COLLECTION

In recently remodeled galleries the exhibition of the painting and sculpture collection begins on the second floor with Cezanne and continues through the great historical movements of the 20th century — Cubism, Expressionism, Futurism, and the School of Paris. On the third floor the galleries are devoted to Dada and Surrealism, post-war European work, Abstract Expressionism, and related art from the early fifties. Four galleries are set aside for sculpture from 1880 to 1960. Ground-floor galleries exclusively for work executed since the mid-1950s bring the exhibition of the collection up to date. This revised presentation has been made possible in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Directed by William Rubin, Chief Curator, Painting and Sculpture Collection.
