SWEDISH-AMERICAN EMPLOYEES OF MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

SEE SPECIAL SHOWING OF SWEDISH FILM

People who work at the Museum of Modern Art are usually so busy preparing exhibitions for the public that they themselves seldom have time to enjoy the results of their own handiwork. This is particularly true in regard to the motion picture programs which the Museum shows.

Therefore on Thursday night, April 25, a special showing of a Swedish talking film, En Natt, has been arranged for the large group of Swedish-Americans employed at the Museum as guards, painters, carpenters, packers, etc., who have been invited to come with their wives and families. They will also see The March of Time's film about the Museum of Modern Art Film Library, The Movies March On.
