AMERICAN SHOW TO OPEN NOV. 2 AT MUSEUM OF MODERN ART

American art of the last 70 years will be presented in the exhibition of American painting and sculpture, 1862-1932, which opens to the public Wednesday, Nov. 2, at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53rd Street, New York City.

Members of the Museum and artists whose work is represented in the show will view the exhibition on Monday, Oct. 31, from 2 to 6 P.M. On Tuesday, from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M., there will be a pre-view. The exhibition will open to the public on Wednesday. The Museum galleries are open from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. daily, and on Sunday from 2 to 6 P.M. The American show will continue for three months, until February 1, 1933.

The paintings and sculpture in the show have been selected from famous public and private collections. The Louvre Museum, Paris, has lent Whistler's "Portrait of the Artist's Mother," which has not been on public exhibition in America since 1882.

In the foreword to the catalogue, A. Conger Goodyear, president of the Museum, says, "In its eighteenth loan exhibition the Museum of Modern Art has endeavored to bring together works of the best quality produced by American painters and sculptors during the last 70 years."

Painters represented in the show include: George Bellows, Thomas Benton, Ralph Blakelock, Peter Blume, Alexander Brook, Charles Burchfield, Mary Cassatt, William Merritt Chase, Glenn O. Coleman, Arthur B. Davies, Stuart Davis, Charles Demuth, Thomas Wilmer Dewing, Preston Dickinson, Frank Duveneck, Thomas Eakins, Ernest Fiene, Arnold Friedman, George Fuller, William J. Glackens, Samuel Halpert, George Overbury ("Pop") Hart, Childe Hassam, Robert Henri, Stefan Hirsch, Winslow Homer, Edward Hopper,

This is the seventh American exhibition held at the Museum of Modern Art since its opening three years ago. Other American exhibitions held at the Museum include: Paintings by Nineteen Living Americans; Max Weber, Retrospective Exhibition; Charles Burchfield, Early Watercolours; Homer, Ryder, Eakins; Painting and Sculpture by Living Americans; and Murals by American Painters and Photographers. This list does not include the international exhibition of modern architecture, half of which was a demonstration of the most advanced designs by American architects.

Alfred H. Barr, Jr., director of the Museum, describes the American show as a climax to the exhibitions of American art held during the past three years at the Museum, and as the Museum's most extensive effort in this field.

Holger Cahill is director of the exhibition.
